Investigation update -

Mr. Downard presented himself to the Board. He stated that since the new cosmetology law was passed it has taken investigations about 6 months to overcome the learning curve. Investigations is currently doing unannounced spot checks at salons making sure everyone in the salon is licensed and the salon is in order. Mr. Downard mentioned investigations have been responding to complaints, however many of the complaints received are minor and are taken on a case-by-case basis. There have been 29 violations found for unlicensed practice. Investigations is trying to research as much information as they can concerning schooling and what is approved and what is not. Mr. Downard feels that investigations are ahead of where they thought they would be. Mr. Downard expressed that when they get a complaint it does not necessarily warrant action on the person.

There are currently 3 pending cases on nail salons which are using Methyl Methacrylate (MMA). Investigations is waiting for information from the food and drug administration before they begin to take action. Mr. Downard stated the estimated time frame from when a complaint is received is approximately 35-40 days, a case will never go over 150 days unless there is unforeseen circumstances.
